Leemans A 189: le même dieu (ptah pataeque) , avec les pieds sur les têtes de deux crocodiles; le dessus de la tête ornée d'un scarabée, un épervier sur chaque épaule; il tient des serpens dans ses mains. La partie postérieure représente Hathor ptérophore, enveloppant le dieu de ses ailes.

Boeser: E.XVIII 274, Amuletten, Pataeken: staande op krokodillen met eene kever op het hoofd en eene gevleugelde isis aan den rug.

description Pataikos, dwarf figure standing on two crocodiles, the head of the right crocodile is broken off. The crocodiles are looking forward, this is the only object in this collection that has this feature. In his hands the dwarf is holding two sticks. On its shoulders on each side a falcon is seated, behind the ears. The figure is standing against a kind of pillar in the shape of a goddess with wings, she is carved into the pillar. She has a sundisk and horns on her head, her face seems like that of a lioness. On the head of the figure a scarab is carved. There is a hole for a string behind the shoulders.

description	Pataikos, dwarf figure, standing on a pedestal, on which two crocodiles are standing. The dwarf is standing on these two crocodiles. His legs are crooked and he has a protruding bottom. His fists rest on his hips and his thumbs are visible and pointing downwards. He has a big belly button. The head of the figure is detailed, he has a bit, flat nose, bit eyes and eyebrows are even visible. His ears are pierced with holes. He has a sidelock on the right side of his head, and he has a scarab on his head. There is a line around his neck, which either is a decorative line or it looks even like the head is been placed on it separately. There is a hole for a string behind his neck. The overall figure is very detailed.

Leemans A188: Terre émaille. Le même dieu (Ptah pataeque), les pieds placés sur les têtes de deux crocodiles; la tête ornée de cheveux, et surmontée d'une coiffure symbolique, composée des cornes du bélier, avec les tiges de fleurs liées ensemble, et flanquées de deux uréus. la partie postérieure nous offre l'image d'Hathor ptérophore, et l'inscription ptah le vivificateur.

Boeser: E.XVIII 278: met opschrift: "ptah geve leven" en twee veren op het hoofd.

description Pataikos, dwarf figure standing on two crocodiles. In his hands he holds two snakes with detailed bodies by the heads, their bodies are hanging on the sides of the dwarf's body. Around the neck of the figure a collar is placed. Its head is decorated with a detailed wig and an Atef crown composed of two horizontal horns, on top of that some flowerstems, flanked on each side by a uraeus. The figure is standing on a pedestal and has a backpillar which covers the entire figure from the crocodiles till the top of the crown. This pillar is decorated with a goddess with wings and a sundisk with horns on her head. She holds in both her hands a feather of Ma'at above her head there is another section which is marked with a horizontal stripe. In this section hieroglyphs are placed, which say: 'Ptah who gives life', two other signs are not easily read. There is a hole for a string between the wig and the crown.

Leemans A186: Terre émaille. Le même dieu (ptah pataeque) debout sur les têtes de deux crocodiles; sur chaque épaule un épervier. Dans ses mains il tient deux serpens. Sur le derrière de ces statues on a figuré la déesse Hathor ptérophore; sur les deux côtés les déesses Isis et Nephtys.

Boeser: E.XVIII 277, Amuletten, Pataeken: staande op krokodillen met eene kever op het hoofd.

description Pataikos, dwarf figure, standing on a pedestal and two crocodiles. He has crooked legs, a small phallus and a protruding belly. He is holding his hands horizontal with the thumbs against each other in which he holds snakes, though they are poorly visible. He has clearly indicated breasts. On his side there are two goddesses. On his left side is Isis with a sundisk and horns on her head, on his right side is Nephtys with her Nb.t hwt crown. On his shoulders there were originally two falcons but they are broken off, only their feet remain visible. The figure has a bald head with a scarab on it. He is standing against a pillar which covers his entire body. On this pillar the image of a goddess is carved. She has wings and a sundisk with horns on her head, beside his head there are two Ma'at feathers.

Leemans A179: Le même dieu (ptah pataeque), mais portant sur la tête la figure en relief du scarabée, emblème de la génération et du monde matériel.

description	Pataikos, dwarf figure. His feet stand on a pedestal, but they are barely visible. He has crooked legs, big phallus and a protruding bottom. He has a small, protruding belly. His hands are fists and his crooked arms are stretched alongside his body. He probably holds something in his hands, but it is difficult to see what that could be. His face is a quite detailed and elongated, his head is bald with a scarab on it. His ears are a bit floppy. There is a hole for a string at the back of his neck.

description The amulet has a lot of attributes. It stands on two crocodiles, it has two sticks or feathers in its hands, in its mouth he has two snakes which seem to come from his arms. On this head is a scarab. He has a back pillar with inscriptions. These inscriptions are very crude however and unreadable, though they look like animals. They might be the same inscriptions as on F1955/2.31, so cryptographic names of Amon, but because it is not really legible it is difficult to determine. The amulet also has some signs beneath the base.

Schneider: "Een zeldzaam groepje van dergelijke beeldjes is een amulet, waarin het Bes-kind Pataikos en het maangodje Chonsoe zijn gecombineerd. Het stukjes (op 84) is van lichtgroene faience en is 6 cm hoog. Op het rugvlak staan twee van de vele, raadselachtige namen van dezelfde, ongrijpbare god Amon: Licht-scarabee-edele en Lotus-leeuw-ram." Verder zegt hij: "behalve als afbeeldingen in het Dodenboek stonden deze toverwezens, vooral de kind- en dwerggodjes, de gebruikers ook in de vorm van kleine beeldjes ter beschikking. Dergelijke amuletstatuettes zijn meestal van groene of blauwe faience gemaakt, en zijn in grote aantallen bewaard gebleven. Zij zijn evenzovele pogingen van de tovenaars-handwerksman om de alomtegenwoordige god Amon-Re, De verhevene en Grote Verborgene, wiens openbaringen verborgen zijn en wiens echte vorm geheim is, voor de gelovigen tastbaar te maken."

description	F 1955/2.31 is a different kind of Pataikos then the three others just mentioned. The Pataikos is standing on two crocodiles. These crocodiles are special because only one has his head to the front of the statue. The other one faces to the back of the object with his tail in front. This rendering of the crocodiles is unique to this collection and they are also very detailed. He holds sticks in his hands and has snakes in his mouth. He seems to have a tight cap around his head with a scarab on top. Next to him stands the moon god Chonsoe with a moon disk and crescent on his head. They stand against a back slab with cryptographic inscriptions on the back about Amun: 'Light-scarab-noblemen' (Ishw-tz-ms=Imn), 'Lotus-Lion-Ram' (srp.t-mzj-srjw=sms), which means 'Amun the elder'. This is a common title of Amun in papyri and also occurs one some Pataikos. Below the feet there are inscriptions too with titles of Amon-Re.

Beeldje van een pantheïstische godheid, staand op een nu verloren gegane basis. Ook de voeten zijn verloren gegaan en het is dus onbekend of de godheid op overwonnen dieren stond. Het lichaam is dat van een naakte mannelijke dwerg, met de kenmerkende kromme armen en benen en dikke buik. De benen zijn tamelijk dun en steken iets naar voren, met ertussen een gladde opvulling. Boven het tamelijk gedetailleerde geslachtsorgaan zijn twee buikplooiën. De navel is diep en rond, de tepels zijn in reliëf weergegeven. Op de romp staat de kop van een ram met naar voren gebogen horens; deze hebben ingesneden V-vormige markeringen en een middenlijn. Opmerkelijk is dat de bek iets is geopend en dreigend ontblote tanden toont. De beide neusgaten zijn rond ingeboord, met twee plooiën erboven. De oren steken naar achteren over de horens en hebben binnenmarkering van enkele parallel ingesneden lijnen. Tussen de bolle ogen met randen in reliëf begint een gedetailleerd weergegeven verenkleed (alle veren met tamelijk spitse punt, middenrib in verhoogd reliëf en V-vormig ingesneden baarden), dat naar achteren toe de hele rug bekleedt en daar uitloopt in een brede staart. De vleugels steken ter weerszijden van de schouders bol naar voren en liggen op de staart over elkaar geslagen. De onderstaart heeft geen detaillering maar is glad. De ruimte tussen staart en de achterkant van de benen is massief opgevuld. De armen hangen langs de zijden af en zijn vlak onder de elleboog afgebroken, zodat niet meer te zien is of de godheid attributen in de hand hield.

Het beeldje heeft geen zichtbare kleurresten meer, maar vertoont wel wat zwarte aanslag op de horens en veren. Op de borst en buik zijn wat donkergrijze verkleuringen, op de rechter schouder de vorm aannemende van een fijne stippeling, hetgeen suggereert dat het beeldje in de grond heeft gelegen. Enkele zwarte vlekjes op de benen lijken moderner. Naast het missende voetstuk inclusief de voeten van de figuur is er de volgende schade: voorste punt linker horens afgebroken, achterrand oren en bovenrand horens plaatselijk afgestoten, kras in verenkleed middenachter, onderrand en rechter hoek staart beschadigd, zijkant en voorkant rechter been deels afgestoten, met enkele butsen in het vlak achter dat been, linker been met krassen en een diepe kerf boven de enkel, lichte krassen op de voorkant van de torso, beide onderarmen afgebroken direct onder de elleboog. De onderkant is vrij gelijkmatig afgebroken over één min of meer horizontaal vlak dat bepaald wordt door de onderrand van de staart - zonder dat vaststelbaar is in hoeverre dit vlak deels origineel is. In dit vlak is een moderne koperen pin bevestigd, waarmee het beeldje op een zwartgeverfde houten basis staat.
